CHARACTER APPEARANCE

ALLIES & ORGANIZATIONS

PERCEPTIVE – To me, no one is unimportant – which might explain how I can pick up on even the subtlest shifts in another person's mood or expression. Because I am so sensitive to other people's feelings and needs, I can make full use of my caring, considerate nature.

GOOD NATURED – All of these strengths come together to form a person who is warmhearted and approachable, with an altruistic spirit and a friendly disposition. I strive to get along with pretty much everyone, and my circles of acquaintances and friends often stretch far and wide.

PERSONALITY TRAITS

THE MAGIC OF EVERYDAY LIFE - I am independent and creative, always on the lookout for the magic and meaning in everyday life. In my unique way, I can be quite introspective. I can't help but ponder the deeper meaning and significance of life – even when I should be paying attention to something else. I believe that everything – and everyone – is connected, and I live for the glimmers of insight that I can gain into these connections.

IDEALS

I entered seclusion to hide from the ones who might still be hunting me. I must someday confront them.

BONDS

OVERLY OPTIMISTIC – Optimism can be among my key strengths. But my rosy outlook can lead me to make well-intentioned but naive decisions, such as believing people who haven't earned my trust. This trait can also make it difficult for me to accept hard but necessary truths – and to share those truths with others.

FLAWS

In the heart of an enchanted forest, where the whispers of ancient trees mingle with the ethereal melodies of unseen creatures, I emerged from the quiet seclusion of my hermitage. A human of fey ancestry, I sought refuge in solitude to escape those who might still be hunting me because of my fey ancestry, but destiny beckoned me to confront the shadows of my past.

My seclusion granted me access to a unique and powerful discovery, a revelation born from the mystic energies that surrounded me. The nature of this discovery remains shrouded, a secret held close to my heart, tied to the forces of nature and the unseen realms. I discovered the ancient art of how to travel mentally and physically through dreamlands.

I am perceptive, attuned to the subtle shifts in others' moods and expressions. My caring and considerate nature allows me to connect with people on a deep level, making me warmhearted and approachable. With an altruistic spirit, I form circles of acquaintances and friends that stretch far and wide.

However, my overly optimistic outlook sometimes leads me to make well-intentioned but naive decisions. Believing in the goodness of people who haven't earned my trust and struggling to accept hard truths are challenges I face on my journey. Yet, it is this very optimism that fuels my determination to find the magic and meaning in everyday life.

For me, the magic of everyday life is a guiding principle. Independent and creative, I live for the glimmers of insight that reveal the interconnectedness of everything and everyone. My introspective nature leads me to ponder the deeper meaning of life, even in the midst of practical concerns.

Now, as I step out from the seclusion of my

CHARACTER BACKSTORY

Eldath

Alignment: Neutral Good
Alternate Names: The Quiet One, The Guardian of Groves, The Mother of the Waters
Category: None
Domains: Life, Nature, Peace
Pantheon: Faerûnian
Symbol: Waterfall plunging into a still pool

Eldath is the goddess of waterfalls, springs, pools, stillness, peace, and quiet glades. She is thought to be present at many such places, particularly those that serve as druid groves. Eldath is a goddess of comfort, healing, and calm. Her blessed waters heal the sick, cure madness, and comfort the dying.

Most rural places have a pond or a glade that locals ascribe to Eldath. Tradition dictates that it be a place of quiet reflection where others are left to their thoughts. A body of water such as a pond or a spring typically serves as a repository of offerings. If the holy site is a glade, a stream one crosses along the way might serve as the repository, or a prominent bush or tree in the glade might be the place where people tie offerings. Typical offerings are broken weapons or items that are remembrances of arguments, which the faithful discard while making a wish for peace in the future. Many of those who favor Eldath are pacifists or people who are troubled by violence they have witnessed or experienced.

Eldath's priests don't organize into large sects. Indeed, many are itinerant, wandering between various holy sites and shrines, seeing that the locations are cared for and that they remain places of sweet serenity. The faithful of Eldath are usually close to nature, and allied to druids, who count Eldath among the First Circle. It is taboo to strike a priest of Eldath, and killing one is said to bring great misfortune. Despite the measure of protection that this belief affords them, most priests of Eldath avoid conflicts rather than attempting to quell them. Those who serve Eldath are happy to preside over peaceful negotiations and to certify treaties, but they can't force others to engage in harmony.
