PERSONALITY TRAITS

IDEALS

I am the last of my tribe, and it is up to me to ensure their names enter legend.

BONDS

FLAWS

I awoke beneath a canopy of stars and ash leaves, no name, no past—just the pulse of the earth beneath me and a hunger to understand why I still breathed. The forest raised me. Birds sang me lullabies. Wind taught me to listen. Roots showed me how to hold on. I was alone, but I was never lonely. Not really.

The dreams started not long after—visions of great battles waged on foreign skies, flames that danced in time with my heartbeat, branches that stretched across endless voids. Always, the Tree. Yggdrasil, ancient and alive. Somehow, it knows me. And when I rage, it answers. My blood surges with its strength. My feet leave the ground and land in places no map dares mark. I am not bound by this world alone.

In the wild, I've found wonder in every corner—glowing mushrooms that sing when touched, rivers that forget which way they should flow. I want to understand it all. Every strange creature, every whispered tale. I want to share it. Some call it foolish—my endless trust, my wide eyes. But I believe there's beauty in most things, even if it hides behind a snarl.

I think I had a people once. My dreams carry their faces, blurred by time and distance, but I feel them watching. Waiting. I believe I am the last of them. I don't carry their memories—but I will carry their legacy.

I don't know where I'm from. But I know where I'm going. Everywhere.
