CHARACTER APPEARANCE

ALLIES & ORGANIZATIONS

Strong sense of duty – People with this trait should probably type heavy on duty, sense of responsibility, and strive to meet their obligations. Keep this may sometimes be misinterpreted as overzealous expectations that others abuse.

Very Loyal – Valuing stability and security very highly, Consuls are staunch protectors of the status quo, which makes them extremely loyal and consistently patient and indulgent. Consuls are thus different among groups they belong to – whether it is their family, or a community, kin, people with this personality type can always be relied upon.

PERSONALITY TRAITS

P THE BEAUTY OF A RESPONSIBLE LIFE

I have a clear moral compass – and it can be nothing short of baffling to me when other

IDEALS

I fight for those who cannot fight for themselves.

BONDS

Too Selfless – The other side of this is that Consuls sometimes try to establish their value with doting attention, something that can quickly overwhelm those who don't need it, making it ultimately unwelcome. Furthermore, Consuls often neglect their own needs in the process.

FLAWS

I was once the King's Champion of Eldros—blade of the realm, shield of the crown. My armor gleamed like flame in sunlight, and my oath was iron: to protect the kingdom, to serve with honor, and to stand beside my dearest friend—the king himself.

Then came the challenge. A fellow knight, once my brother-in-arms, accused the Queen of betrayal. I struck him down in single combat, my sword a judgment rendered by duty, not doubt. The truth came later, cold and cruel. She had betrayed him. The knight had spoken true. And I had silenced him.

I expected the King's rage. What I did not expect was his silence—his heartbreak held behind weary eyes, too proud to curse me, too wounded to forgive. My sense of duty had blinded me. I had failed them both.

So I laid down my title and my crest and walked away from the only home I'd ever known.

Now, I walk a different path—not one of courts or crowns, but of common folk. I fight for those who have no champion, who suffer in silence under the boots of tyrants and brigands. In their cause, I find clarity again. In their thanks, I find worth.

Still, I give too much of myself. I watch over strangers as if they were kin, protect every village like it's my own. It exhausts me—but I cannot help it. Honor, once broken, cannot be rebuilt in comfort. Only in sacrifice.

I was the King's Champion once. Now, I am no one's. And in that, I have found my truest self.
