CHARACTER APPEARANCE

ALLIES & ORGANIZATIONS

Dedicated – Seeing things to completion borders on an ethical obligation for Executives. Tasks aren't simply abandoned because they've become difficult or boring – people with the Executive personality type take them up when they are the right thing to do, and they will be finished so long as they remain the right thing to do.

Direct and Honest – Executives trust facts far more than abstract ideas or opinions. Straightforward statements and information are king, and Executive personalities return the honesty (whether it's wanted or not).

PERSONALITY TRAITS

IDEALS

I hold no greater cause than my service to all of nature's living creatures that cannot defend

BONDS

Inflexible and Stubborn – The problem with being so fixated on what works is that Executives too often

FLAWS

I buried the last wolf myself—its den burned out, fur singed, eyes wide and still. The druids say nature always finds a way, but they didn't see what I saw. The fires of Elemental Evil doesn't leave time for rebirth. It scorches everything—trees, beasts, spirits. Even hope.

I am a steward of nature's balance, a shepherd of the wild. I believed, foolishly, that the old rituals and quiet guidance would be enough. But nature is not just balance—it is also vulnerable. And when the flames came, with them came men in black steel and cruel laughter. Not everything that threatens the wild wears claws or breathes smoke.

So I changed. I didn't break my oaths—I sharpened them. I would not stand at the edge of destruction again, hands folded in prayer. I would lead. I would act.

Now, I walk alongside warriors and wanderers, those brave—or mad—enough to fight evil where it rises. I don't pretend to understand all their ways, and I won't waste breath on philosophy. What matters is the work: protect the innocent, preserve the wild, and bury the dead only when there's no one left to save.

I am not gentle, but I am just. I am not clever, but I am certain. My staff carries the blessings of beasts and Fey alike—not as decoration, but as a promise. To guide, to guard, to endure.

So if you seek a guide through tangled woods or a voice when spirits cry out—speak. But do not lie, and do not delay. I have no patience for half-truths, and less for wasted time. The world burns in places you haven't seen.

And I aim to stop the fire.
